

GRAPHICACY AND CULTURE: Refocusing on Visual Learning

Just like literacy and numeracy, graphicacy is a vital tool for learning and everyday life

This important new book by Xenia Danos of the University of Cyprus reviews current knowledge concerning graphicacy and its place in both our everyday lives and school curricula. The roles that literacy and numeracy play are widely recognised, and, although graphicacy is ever present, it goes largely unnoticed. Xenia Danos talks about her new book on LDP's YouTube Channel at youtube.com/ldpressbooks

Hardback, colour

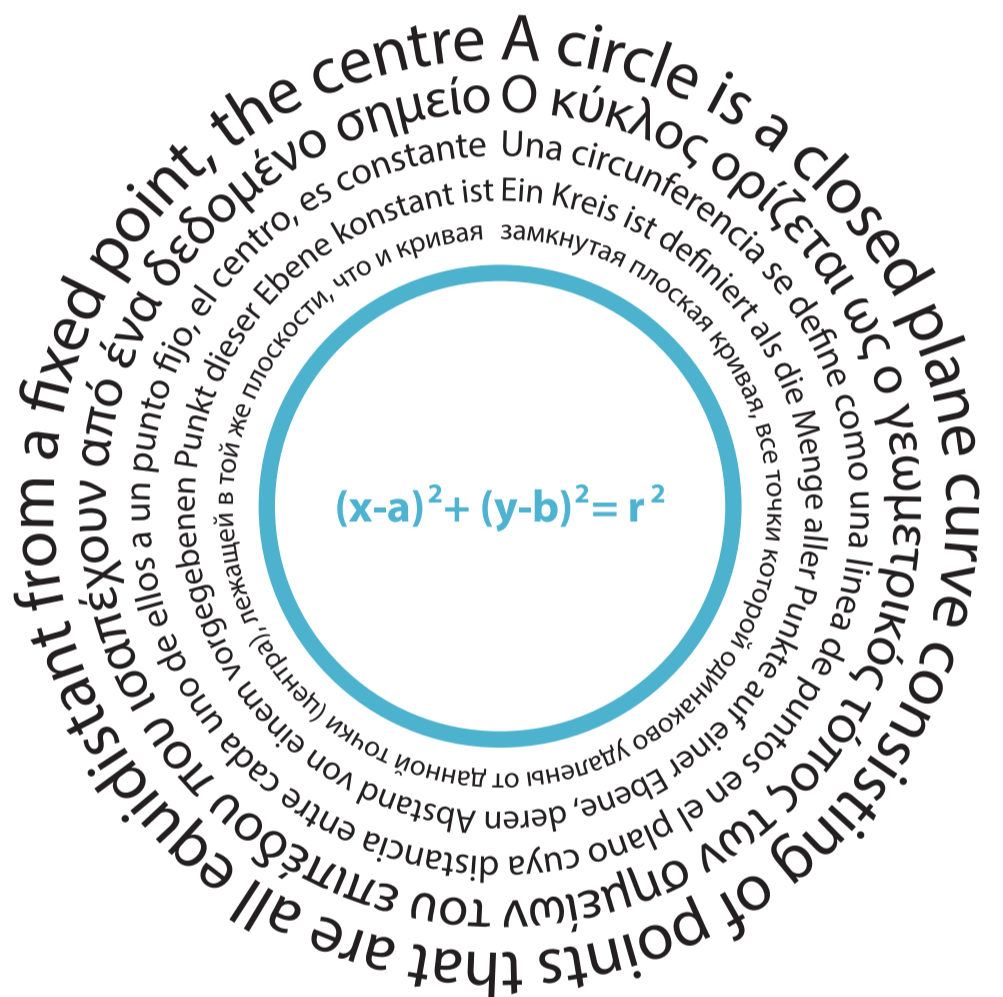

ISBN 978-1-909671-06-5 (£55.00 RRP)

Paperback, B&W

ISBN 978-1-909671-07-2 (£15.99 RRP)

ePub B&W

ISBN 978-1-909671-08-9 (£18.99 RRP)

Xenia's academic career started with a BA Honours Degree in Design and Technology followed by a PGCE in Design and Technology for Secondary Education at Middlesex University. After working as a secondary teacher for a few years she came back to education to complete a PhD on Graphicacy at Loughborough University while working with BA level and MA level students at Loughborough University and Sheffield Hallam University. Xenia now works in the Department of Education at the University of Cyprus.

LDP's ebooks, hardback and paperback versions are now available from all good book stores (eg Blackwells and Waterstones) and online book sellers (eg BOOKSetc). Further details and reviews can be found on our website.

www.ldpress.co.uk